Success Spans Beyond Academics
Preparing for college, careers, and life requires a diverse set of knowledge and skills.

In the early 2000s, it was clear that earning a high school diploma did not ensure readiness for postsecondary experience. In fact, research and policy reports showed the opposite. While definitions of college and career readiness tend to focus primarily on academic factors, research has actually found that there is more to readiness and success than just academics.

The ACT® Holistic Framework™ is a deep and broad survey of what people need to know to be able (and willing) to do to achieve education and work success at any age.
